

subliminal criminal

ISSUE #2

By [Name]

www.blackdog.org

THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF THE ENVIRONMENT

What role do institutions play in environmental policy?

Environmental institutions are
- formal rules that guide the behavior of actors
- and are self-enforcing because actors
- have an incentive to conform to them
- and they are self-enforcing because actors
- have an incentive to conform to them

Environmental institutions are
- formal rules that guide the behavior of actors
- and are self-enforcing because actors
- have an incentive to conform to them
- and they are self-enforcing because actors
- have an incentive to conform to them

I see all this spending about the environment is just
- corporate "charity" to get products to market more easily
- and that is the main reason for these problems
- and that is the main reason the system needs to be re-
- structured

But environmental policy is not enough
- we need to change the way we think about
- the environment and the way we live
- to be able to solve environmental
- problems

Environmental policy is not enough
- we need to change the way we think about
- the environment and the way we live
- to be able to solve environmental
- problems

Environmental policy is not enough
- we need to change the way we think about
- the environment and the way we live
- to be able to solve environmental
- problems

Environmental policy is not enough
- we need to change the way we think about
- the environment and the way we live
- to be able to solve environmental
- problems